TAFE Queensland North to lead by example

TAFE Queensland North is rolling out more local training, launching a series of interactive Leadership Workshops.

TAFE Queensland North General Manager, Joann Pyne said the workshops will meet industry demand.

“Across Cairns and Townsville, individuals and businesses are crying out for this sort of training.

“We’re really excited to be rolling out the Leadership Workshop Series, which will be delivered by experienced program facilitators.

“These facilitators have held high profile leadership roles, from working with the Federal and State Government and even a national sporting team, so they have a wealth of knowledge to pass on,” Ms Pyne said.

The Leadership Workshop Series will benefit supervisors and managers from a wide range of industries, who are looking for professional development to climb the corporate ladder.

Ms Pyne said the two-day workshops could even put people on the pathway to further study.

“Students who complete the Leadership Workshop Series will gain credit towards either a Certificate IV in Leadership and Management or a Diploma of Leadership and Management qualification,” Ms Pyne said.

The first two-day workshop will be delivered at the Cairns and Pimlico campuses on November 16 and 17 and will focus on how to lead a dynamic team.

Participants will also learn how to develop leadership skills at another two-day workshop, scheduled for November 23 and 24.

Ms Pyne said the November workshops will provide participants with industry relevant knowledge.

“Students will walk away from the sessions with the right skills to lead change management, motivate a team, communicate effectively, manage conflict, measure success and they will also have a clear understanding of emotional intelligence,” Ms Pyne said.

Further workshops will also be held in early 2017 and will focus on how to use innovation to build sustainable businesses and how to manage project quality.

TAFE Queensland North can also deliver the Leadership Workshop Series in workplaces, to suit individual business needs.
